Two local businesses join AdventHealth Championship partnership team

Molle Automotive Group and Jack Stack BBQ headline newest AHC partnerships

KANSAS CITY, Missouri – The AdventHealth Championship announced two long-standing local businesses have joined the Championship - Molle Automotive Group is the new official car partner and Fiorella's Jack Stack Barbecue is the presenting sponsor of the Tailgate at the Turn and Official Barbecue provider for the event.

As the official automotive provider, the AdventHealth Championship will feature various Molle automobiles on site, including an all EV zone from Molle line of electric vehicles. The Official Pro-Am presented by ACE on Wednesday, May 14 will feature an opportunity for amateurs to win a car with a Hole in One. In addition, Molle will also provide shuttle transportation for all guests using the Molle VIP Parking lot, located at The Church of the Nazarene, at 119th and State Line Road.

“With Molle’s diverse line of vehicles and status as a staple of the auto landscape in the KC metro, they are an ideal partner for the Championship” said Rick Amos, AdventHealth Championship Tournament Director. “As our event continues to grow into a cornerstone event in Kansas City, it’s important for us to have partners whose business objectives align with ours and we have found that with the Molle family of dealerships.”

Guests attending the 2025 AdventHealth Championship will have up-close opportunity to check out the newest Toyota, Chevrolet, Audi and Volkswagon models, as well as additional on-site branding.

“We love fostering partnerships within the Kansas City community and celebrating everything that makes this city great,” said Karl Kramer, Marketing Director for Molle Auto Group. “Connecting with our customers through the AdventHealth Championship makes this partnership even more special.”

Fiorella’s Jack Stack Barbecue is a staple in the Kansas City BBQ community, originating in Martin City, just down the road from host location Blue Hills Country Club. With this partnership, one of the best restaurants in KC, will be feature at the Tailgate at the Turn presented by Jack Stack. This shared hospitality space on Hole 9 green will feature an all-inclusive food menu from Jack Stack as well as non-bbq fare from their fine catering brand, Storia.

“We’re incredibly proud to be part of Kansas City’s rich barbecue heritage, and partnering with the AdventHealth Championship is a natural extension of that legacy,” said Jeff Rousselo, Vice President, Catering at Jack Stack. “This event brings together community, tradition, and excellence—values that align perfectly with both Jack Stack Barbecue and Storia Fine Catering.”

In addition to the Tailgate at the Turn, Jack Stack will also serve as the official concessionaire for the event, providing food and drink options at four different on-course locations.

“Just like with Molle, Jack Stack is another Kansas City icon that we are thrilled to have join our championship event” said Amos. “You can’t have a major event in Kansas City without a great BBQ partner.”

Additional sponsorship opportunities are available for the 2025 AdventHealth Championship is now open. For more information, contact Sales Manager Nichole Smith at nichole.Smith3@AdventHealth.com.

About Fiorella's Jack Stack Barbecue

Started by Russ Fiorella in Kansas City back in 1957, Jack Stack began as a traditional storefront barbecue with a modest selection of five to six items. Jack Fiorella, the eldest son, worked with his father until 1974, when he decided to branch off and start Fiorella's Jack Stack Barbecue of Martin City.

Today, Jack Stack is in its fourth generation of family-ownership. In 2024, Jack Stack Barbecue's business has grown to six Kansas City area restaurants, a full-service barbecue catering operation, nationwide shipping available at www.ship.jackstackbbq.com, non-barbecue catering experience called Storia Fina Catering, and an event venue in Southern Johnson County called Fiorella's Event Space.
